For Jamesas for the Christian community at large, the moral demands of the Law continue to serve as a guidebut as interpreted by the Lord. Behind every one of God's covenants with man is a five-fold legal treaty. In addition, professions of faith were also composed, together with the liturgical hymns which are found in the New Testament Letters.

Moreover, in this profound situation, the husband and wife make very special demands on each other, demands that would be totally unreasonable if extended outside their own communion.
The notion that the Hebrew canon should be preferred by Christians does not seem to have produced in the Eastern Church either a profound or long-lasting impression. Craig S.

the Christians were firmly persuaded that a sentence of everlasting destruction had been pronounced against the whole fabric of the Mosaic law, the Imperial sophist would have converted the success of his undertaking into a specious argument against the faith of prophecy and the truth of revelation.
