Email address for updates. Organisations are reluctant to share costing data, with which models may be developed and validated.

If so, market rates of return should not be used to determine the discount rate. SOX for example, generates higher costs for larger firms, as well as for firms with less centralized decision making and more dispersed or fragmented assets. CBA adds up the total costs of a programme or activity and compares it against its total benefits.

While bankruptcies can reorganize firms, resulting in transfers among investors to add to list.
